About this piece

Set of six shades in glass, aligned to the Arts and Crafts movement (1880–1910), 1900. Clear ribbed bodies flare to ruffled rims, forming compact bell profiles suited to gallery-mounted pendants or wall lights. Even vertical ribbing provides soft prismatic diffusion, while the flared mouth reads as a gentle skirt. Colour is neutral, reading as clear glass. Forms are consistent across the set, appropriate for reinstating period fittings or completing a multi-arm chandelier. Within the Arts and Crafts lighting vocabulary the combination of ribbed bell shade and ruffled rim is a characteristic late-nineteenth-century motif in British work, balancing functional light control with modest ornament.

Diameter for the gallery or the lampshade hole: 5.5cm/2.17" Inches.
