About this piece

An oval copper-plated mirror dating to c.1900, designed in the Arts and Crafts Movement style. The wide frame is hand-formed and decorated with repoussé Celtic knotwork at four compass points, symbolising continuity and craftsmanship. The rich patina of the copper surface enhances its handmade character, reflecting the movement's reverence for natural materials and artisanal technique. A fine example of decorative metalwork that merges Celtic revival motifs with late Victorian design sensibility.
