About this piece

An Arts and Crafts extending dining table with curved ends. The original leaves are missing. It could be used as it is or have new leaves made then refinished to match. It is quite unusual because the extending mechanism slides out as opposed to winds out and it doesn't have castors but slightly longer legs and more elegant. Length without leaves 64 1/2", Width 46". If new leaves were made this table would extend to almost 9' long. Circa 1900.
