About this piece

A three-branch brass ceiling light aligned to the Arts and Crafts movement (1880–1910), c.1900. The central stem drops to a triad of swept arms, each terminating in a petal gallery that reads as stylised foliage, a familiar natural motif within the movement. A domed ceiling rose and suspension loop complete the frame. Present lampholders function but should be checked; glass shades shown are for display only and are sold separately. Recommend electrical inspection and re-wiring/PAT prior to installation.

Further images available on request. The piece is currently held in storage at one of our showrooms.
