About this piece

Charles Bevan attributed for Gillows

A good quality set of six Gothic Revival oak dining chairs designed by Charles Bevan and made by Gillows of Lancaster with protruding shaped strip to the head rail and canted corners and dot detailing beneath.

The central vertical upright has a central circular disc and angular cross member with conforming dot detailing to the lower edges, with through tenons to the ends and raised buttons to the fronts, and another central raised button above the central V, and further dot detailing to the lower seat sides on hexagonal tapering front legs.

All these chairs have been gently knocked apart, joints cleaned, glued, reassembled, clamped, and refinished in our workshops.

One is upholstered in a quality hide to show the finished example. Upholstery can be arranged.
